

Good Beach Guide Full Results 2013

Embargoed 00.01hrs 27th March 2013 - The Good Beach Guide uses sampling data<sup>1</sup> collected by the UK environment agencies and local authorities during the previous summer (i.e. the 2013 Good Beach Guide results use data from the 2012 bathing season) to assess water quality at beaches (both designated and non-designated bathing waters) against the following standards, from best to worst water quality:

Recommended

Achieved MCS Recommended standards – our standard for excellent water quality

- Guideline bathing water standards were met, but 100% of samples did not exceed 2,000 E.coli per 100 ml<sup>2</sup>
- Local continuous sewage discharges are appropriately treated to remove the majority of bacteria and viruses using, as a minimum, secondary treatment<sup>3</sup>

Guideline

Achieved Guideline bathing water standards – our standard for higher water quality

- Mandatory bathing water standards were met
- 80% of samples did not exceed 100 E.coli per 100 ml
- 90% of samples did not exceed 100 intestinal enterococci per 100 ml<sup>4</sup>

Mandatory

Achieved Mandatory bathing water standards – our standard for minimum water quality

- 95% of samples did not exceed 2,000 E.coli per 100 ml<sup>5</sup>

Fail

Failed Mandatory bathing water standards – did not meet our minimum water quality standard

<sup>1</sup> MCS does not take water quality samples ourselves; we apply our criteria to monitoring data provided by the following environment agencies, local authorities and Governments; the Environment Agency*, Scottish Environment Protection Agency, Northern Ireland Environment Agency, Dover Harbour Board, Borough of Poole, Wirral Council, The Highland Council, Swansea Council, Shetland Islands Council, Isle of Man Government, States of Jersey, States of Guernsey.

<sup>2</sup> Before the 2012 bathing season the previous bacterial indicators were used (i.e. 100% of samples did not exceed the mandatory value of 2,000 faecal coliforms and 10,000 total coliforms per 100 ml).

<sup>3</sup> Information regarding the treatment of local sewage discharges is provided to us by the following water companies; Dŵr Cymru Welsh Water, Scottish Water, Northern Ireland Water, South West Water, Wessex Water, Yorkshire Water, Northumbrian Water, United Utilities, Southern Water, Anglian Water, Guernsey Water, Isle of Man Water & Sewerage Authority, States of Jersey.

<sup>4</sup> Before the 2012 bathing season the previous bacterial indicators were used (i.e. 80% of samples did not exceed 100 faecal coliforms and 500 total coliforms per 100 ml, and 90% of samples did not exceed 100 faecal streptococci per 100 ml).

<sup>5</sup> Before the 2012 bathing season the previous bacterial indicators were used (i.e. 95% of samples did not exceed the mandatory value of 2,000 faecal coliforms and 10,000 total coliforms per 100 ml).
